Third Sunday of Advent

"An abundance of research demonstrates that healthy psychological and social development is found among children who grow up in a home headed by the husband and wife in a healthy marriage. In fact, the best source of emotional stability and good physical health for children is the stable, happy marriage of their mother and father. Children raised in intact married families are more likely to attend college, and are physically and emotionally healthier than their peers raised in non-married families. ... The rate of virginity among teenagers at all ages is highly correlated with the presence or absence of married parents. ... Use of illegal drugs is low among children from married families."
